Feeding at Beginning of Dinner.

The custom of serving pudding as the first course at dinner seems to have interested a good many people of our day. A gentleman from Maine informs the writer that it is still the custom in certain sections of his state. In the autobiography of the Adams family it is mentioned that at a dinner given by the venerable ex-president of the United States, at which his grandchildren were present, the first course was Indian pudding, and the little folks were told that the more pudding they ate the more beef they could have. So of course they gorged themselves on the pudding, and as a consequence they had no appetite for beef when it was served. Thus were maintained the simple and economical methods of the forefathers. The boys who came to the city from the country and later became the successful and wealthy merchants of Boston were raised in a most frugal manner. Their breakfast the year round was of brown bread and milk and the same for their supper. The dinner was of baked beans and pie, rarely any meat.—Boston Transcript.

A Picturesque Statesman.

The El Dorado Republican gives a picture of an early statesman and his picturesque attire: When the Hon. David L. McCabe was elected to the legislature from Butler county in 1865 and went to Topeka to be sworn in he astonished not only the natives, but everybody else, as he was the most gorgeously dressed statesman that Kansas had ever produced. He was very dark, with long black hair. On his head was a coonskin cap, the tail of the coonskin hanging gracefully down his back. His coat was made of wolfskins nicely tanned and lined with red flannel. Six handsome tails hung from his coat tails and flapped in the breeze as he meandered up to the speaker's desk to take the oath. He wore a spotted doekin vest, buckskin knee breeches, handsomely fringed; top boots, gloves made of beaver skin, a watch chain done in beadwork, a flannel shirt with a flaming red bandanna pocket handkerchief around his neck, and it is needless to say he created a sensation.

Inappropriate Quotations.

The following is a good example of inappropriate quotations: A clergyman appointed to an East End living found his parish church sadly in need of repair and gave orders for its renovation. While this was in hand the idea occurred to him to visit the mission halls in connection with it to see what might be needed there. In one of them which was used as a mission chapel he found a state of indescribable filth from end to end, and an accompanying effluvia. In disgust he raised his eyes toward the roof and could hardly repress a fit of laughter on reading the text stenciled on the wall behind the pulpit. "How dreadful is this place!" Another story is of an old Presbyterian clergyman who, away on a preaching engagement, found above the bed on which he was to sleep the singular advice, "Occupy till I come."—London Chronicle.

Luck and Labor.

If the boy who exclaims "Just my luck!" were truthful he would say "Just my laziness!" or "Just my inattention!"
Luck is waiting for something to turn up.
Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something.
Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy.
Labor turns out at 6 o'clock and with a busy pen or ringing hammer lays the foundation of a competence.
Luck whines; labor whistles.
Luck relies on chances, labor on character.
Luck slips down to indigence; labor strides upward to independence.—Christian Advocate.

A Puzzle Fable.

An American heiress was wooed by a foreign prince, who urgently besought her to become his wife. In order to test the sincerity of his love she asked, "Will you still marry me if I give away all my money for charity and become as poor as yourself?"
The prince considered awhile, and then responded, "Yes, provided you will still marry me if I renounce my title and become a plain republican person like yourself."
Query—Did she agree to his proposition?—Smart Set.

He Worked On.

Wife—George, this burning of the candle at both ends means an untimely grave. It is nearly 12 o'clock. Come to bed.
George—But I'm doing this night work in order to find money enough to buy you a birthday present.
Wife—Well, if you will persist in working of course I can't stop it. Good night, dear.

Drinks and Drops.

"So? You probably misunderstood Dobbins. What he said must have been that Jenkins never drops a drink."—Baltimore News.

A Pleasant Evening Indeed.

Last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Urton the entertainment given by the Senior Epworth League was one of the most pleasant of the season. By 8:30 o'clock Mr. Urton's large and brilliantly lighted rooms were filled to overflowing with jolly Leaguers both young and old.

A scripture lesson was read from Psalm xix, followed by prayer by Brother Lyon, which gave the impression to all that they were not there for fun alone, but to accomplish good as well.
"The Inventor's Wife" by Miss Mabel Hankla was so well recited that she was forced to take the floor again or forever give up her sense of hearing. The last piece ended by Mr. George Gilmore being accused of stealing two peaches.

Discipline Drill from Article of Religion No. 17 to the General Conference came next on the program and the questions were readily responded to by all the members. Those that the members could not recall were answered by Brother Lyon.

The greatest sensation of the evening was the living pictures. "Clinging to the Cross" by Miss Katherine Norfleet, accompanied by a solo from Miss Rabb, was quite beautiful. The Three Graces, "Faith," Miss Nina Rabb; "Hope," Miss Pearl Landsaw; "Charity," Miss Mamie Cobean, was a picture not to be forgotten.

A lecture on science by Mr. A. N. White was so full of learned words, and the scientific way in which he uttered them would have made Marconi hasten to consult his "Webster." Lastly came the menu written in the "confusion of tongues" when "dissolved diamonds" were ordered fresh water was brought, "cupid's rations" were sour pickles, and "concentrated odors" were served in the form of good old fashioned onions.

On the whole it was one of the most enjoyable evenings imaginable and everyone was very thankful to Mr. and Mrs. Urton and the Leaguers for the nice evening.

Market Letter.

Special to The Record.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 2.—Cattle receipts at Kansas City last week were 80,000 head, including 9,000 calves, probably the biggest run on record at this season. Phenomenal runs at all the markets proved too much for the market, and all kinds are lower. Labor troubles among canning operatives in Chicago packing houses the latter part of the week depressed prices on the stuff 20 to 30 cents. Shortage of cars for the past several weeks and lateness of the season forced in many grass cattle in spite of lower prices, and stockers and feeders were much too numerous for the buyers on hand. Quite an accumulation of this class was held over by speculators at the end of the week, shrinkage of 15 to 30 cents in values not attracting enough buyers to clean up the yards. Stock calves also closed the week much lower and dull. Today the conditions are much better, however. Threatened labor troubles are not believed to be serious, which helps the cow market, and the run is only 14,000 head today, about two-thirds of recent Monday runs, aiding the general market. Cows are 10 to 15 cents better than low time last week. Fair Colorado cows brought $2.75 and $2.80 today. Fat stuff is steady and salesmen are holding stockers and feeders higher, as more buyers from the country are in sight. Most western stockers and feeders bring between $2.75 and $3.50.

Fat grades of sheep lost some last week, the low time about Wednesday. Ewes also dropped below the $3.00 mark, and sold around $2.80 to $2.90. Fat wethers brought $3.25 to $3.40, feeding wethers not much changed, at $2.90 and $3.15. Fat lambs on the other hand closed very strong at $5.00 for best. Several big strings of feeding lambs were disposed of at $3.90 and $4.00. Today's supply is moderate at 5,000, and fat lambs are higher, selling at $5.10. Fat wethers are strong, and ewes and feeders are weak to a shade lower. Run last week 46,190 head. JNO. M. HAZELTON.
